Mr. WAXMAN. Madam Speaker, I rise to congratulate the El Camino Real High School Academic Decathlon team on its extraordinary record-setting sixth victory as the United States Academic Decathlon champions.

I am extremely proud to represent this remarkable team of nine students of Woodland Hills, California. The students committed months of hard work together in preparation for this competition. The nationwide competition is very challenging and includes written and oral tests in seven subjects. The team set a record with its sixth United States Academic Championship and defeated 34 teams from around the country. They received an astounding 49,951.7 points out of a possible 60,000 and won and impressive 21 individual awards.

The nine winning team members are Vivian Cheng, Daniel de Haas, Evan Edmisten, Andrew Fann, Audrey Goldbaum, Jessica Lin, Daniel Moreh, Adriana Ureche and Michael Walker. The coaches are John Dalsass and Stephanie Franklin.

The students personify academic excellence and the power of teamwork. Their dedicated coaches, school, staff, families and entire community are tremendously proud of their achievement.

I ask my colleagues to join me in recognizing these remarkable students.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

HON. MIKE COFFMAN

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, May 3, 2010

Mr. COFFMAN of Colorado. Madam Speaker, I would like to make a correction of my vote on passage of H.R. 2499. On April 29, for rollcall vote 242, the Puerto Rico Democracy Act of 2009, I was unintentionally recorded as voting "yea." I oppose the legislation and it was my intention to vote "nay."

REQUESTING THAT MY NAME BE WITHDRAWN AS A COSPONSOR OF H.R. 2499, THE PUERTO RICO DEMOCRACY ACT

HON. JOHN ABNEY CULBERSON

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, May 3, 2010

Mr. CULBERSON. Madam Speaker, I share Thomas Jefferson's belief that majority rule is "the vital principle of republics," therefore I am opposed to passage of H.R. 2499, and respectfully request that my name be withdrawn as a co-sponsor. I was mistaken in co-sponsoring this bill because it is not apparent from the language of the bill that it allows Puerto Rico to decide its future by less than a majority vote. I have also learned that current law enables Puerto Rico to hold an election to determine their future at any time, so this law is redundant—and we already have far too many redundant unnecessary laws on the books. For these reasons I would ask that my name be withdrawn as a co-sponsor of this bill.

KATHERINE DUNLAP

HONORING BRIAN K. BETTS

HON. CHRIS VAN HOLLEN

OF MARYLAND

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, May 3, 2010

Mr. VAN HOLLEN. Madam Speaker, I rise today to commemorate the life and legacy of Brian K. Betts. A resident of Silver Spring, Maryland, Mr. Betts served his community as a teacher and principal in the Montgomery County and District of Columbia public school systems. Tragically, on April 15, 2010, Mr. Betts lost his life in an act of senseless violence.

Mr. Betts was born in Manassas, Virginia to Delbert and Doris Betts. He attended public schools there and graduated from Stonewall Jackson High School. He continued his education at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro and Hood College, receiving his Bachelor's and Master's degrees, respectively.

From the beginning of his teaching career as a middle school physical education teacher, Mr. Betts aspired to improve the quality of education in our community. With a boundless enthusiasm that motivated his students and gained the admiration of his peers, he made an impact in the lives of everyone who knew him. An unparalleled work ethic and passion for helping children succeed enabled Mr. Betts to quickly be recognized for his extraordinary talents and dedication. He was recognized early in his career for his outstanding leadership at Neelsville Middle School, located in Germantown, Maryland, and received the prestigious Washington Post Agnes Meyer Award in 1999.

Part of what made Mr. Betts such an exceptional educator was his unique style of teaching that stressed self-improvement and personal goal-setting over more traditional teaching methods. Mr. Betts put his innovative teaching methods into wider use at the Loiederman Middle School in Silver Spring, Maryland, where he developed a magnet program that drew in students from diverse socioeconomic backgrounds regardless of their academic achievement. As with most of Mr. Betts' efforts, the program became a rapid success. Under his guidance, the percentage of students with passing reading and math scores jumped by double digits within a two-year period.

Eager to take on new challenges, Mr. Betts accepted a position as principal of Shaw Middle School at Garnet-Patterson in Washington, DC, and worked tirelessly each and every day to bring positive change to a school that had been plagued with difficulties.

With the death of Mr. Betts, our nation has lost a rising star in the field of education. Yet, even in the face of this tragedy, we can take solace in knowing that his legacy and memory will be carried on in the lives of the countless students he touched and inspired.

Mr. Betts is survived by his parents, sister, and nieces, whom we hope find comfort in knowing how much Brian was loved by so many people.

Madam Speaker, I ask my colleagues to join me in recognizing the remarkable life of Brian K. Betts.

HONORING DR. RICK GROSBERG OF UC DAVIS

HON. MIKE THOMPSON

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, May 3, 2010

Mr. THOMPSON of California. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor Dr. Rich

Grosberg of University of California, Davis. Dr. Rich Grosberg is the 2010 recipient of the UC Davis Prize for Undergraduate Teaching and Scholarly Achievement. This $40,000 prize, first awarded in 1987, is believed to be the largest undergraduate teaching award in the nation. The prize is awarded to recognize scholars who are successful not only in their research, but convey their excitement and love of scholarship to students they teach.

Over time, many UC Davis donors—including members of the Davis Chancellor's Club, alumni and trustees and trustees emeriti of the UC Davis Foundation—have made philanthropic contributions to support the prize. The winner is selected based on the recommendations of other professors, research peers, representatives from the UC Davis Foundation Board of Trustees and students.

As a Professor of Evolution and Ecology, questions matter to Rick Grosberg—and he carries out his research on evolution and family conflict in a manner that seeks to show his students that science is not just about mastering a body of knowledge, but also about asking the right questions and challenging authority.

Upon learning he was this year's recipient, Grosberg said he was "deeply honored" to be receiving the award, adding, "I owe a huge debt to my teachers and mentors, who challenged and inspired me throughout my education, my family and my students—all of them—who continue to challenge, inspire and teach me every day."

Having to explain scientific concepts to a hall full of students also helps him ask better questions in his research, Grosberg said. "I'm a much more incisive researcher as a result of teaching."

As an undergraduate at UC Santa Cruz, Grosberg did not initially consider biology as a profession. He considered majoring in English. "I just assumed that being a scientist reflected the way I'd been taught science: It was received knowledge, a fact-finding mission."

Then he took Cowell Biology, an eclectic course on the history of biology and the personalities who created the field.

"It showed me that biology is about people who step outside their culture and society and ask novel questions, and the best example is Charles Darwin," Grosberg said. "That turned me on to biology."

His research deals with conflict and cooperation between living things, usually marine invertebrates. "Sometimes we help each other and sometimes we kill each other, and there are good evolutionary reasons for both," he said. The evolution of altruism is an old problem in evolutionary biology. Why should one animal expend effort and energy to help another, instead of conserving resources so they can leave the most descendants? The answer, in most cases, is that animals share many of their genes with close relatives. By helping a sibling who shares half your genes, you can still have a genetic impact on the next generation.

On the other hand, relatives can also come into conflict. Those conflicts might be between individuals, between the sexes, between siblings, between generations and sometimes all those at once.

Grosberg earned his Ph.D. from Yale University in 1982 and spent a year at the University of Padua, Italy, as a NATO postdoctoral fellow. He joined UC Davis as an assistant professor in what was then the Department of Zoology in 1983.

"Professor Grosberg understands the value to our undergraduates of the hands-on research experience and, as a mentor, he is deeply committed to ensuring our students' success," said Chancellor Linda Katehi. "That mindset is one that we place a very high value on at UC Davis and it is at the very heart of the UC Davis Prize for Undergraduate Teaching and Scholarly Achievement."

Ken Burtis, Dean of the College of Biological Sciences, said, "Professor Grosberg has a truly extraordinary passion and talent for teaching, whether mentoring small groups of students exploring the interface between math and biology or delivering the fundamentals of biology to hundreds of students through his highly-praised lectures. He exemplifies the best that UC Davis has to offer."

"Enthusiastic" is the term that comes up again and again in student evaluations of Grosberg's classes, along with "energetic" and "entertaining." His teaching ranges from the team-taught "Introduction to Biology: Principles of Ecology and Evolution," which teaches about 2,000 students a year, to the CLIMB, Collaborative Learning at the Interface of Mathematics and Biology, training program, which includes just seven or eight students.

"He made me want to learn more," one student wrote of Grosberg's introductory evolution class last year. "The best instructor I have had so far at UCD," wrote another.

Among professional honors, Grosberg was awarded the Division of Biological Sciences Teaching Award in 2000 and the UC Davis Academic Senate's Distinguished Teaching Award in 2002. In 2004, he was president of the American Society of Naturalists. He has served as an adviser to The Nature Conservancy, the American Farmland Trust and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. He is an elected fellow of the California Academy of Sciences and former director of the UC Davis Center for Population Biology.

At this time, it is appropriate to recognize and acknowledge Dr. Grosberg for his years of exemplary work as a scholar and educator, and congratulate him on receiving this well deserved award. His commitment to inspiring and educating students has been unwavering, and he deserves our collective recognition and thanks.

A TRIBUTE TO NICHOLAS H.
BURLAK

HON. BARNEY FRANK

OF MASSACHUSETTS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, May 3, 2010

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Madam Speaker, I recently was informed by a group of citizens who live in my district of a remarkable story about one of their neighbors. I admire their spirit in making sure that the inspiring story of their friend and neighbor, Nicholas H. Burlak, is more widely known. And I ask that my remarks here be printed to call attention to Mr. Burlak's remarkable achievements, so that they may serve as an example to others.

Nicholas Burlak was born in Bethlehem, Pennsylvania, in 1924, and when the Depression came, his father moved the family to Ukraine in search of work. When World War II broke out in 1941, when the Hitler-Stalin pact fell apart and Germany then attacked its erstwhile ally, the Soviet Union, Nicholas Burlak tried to return to the United States, the home of his birth, to enlist in the Marine Corps. But this was physically impossible. He then did the next-best thing—determined to fight the Nazis, and to defend his country of birth as best he could, Mr. Burlak became an American volunteer in the Soviet Army. Subsequently he was wounded four times in battle, twice suffered shell shock and received several medals for bravery as he participated in the terrible battles between the Soviet and Nazi armies, ultimately fighting his way with other Russians to Berlin. Among the signatures left by Russian soldiers on the walls of the Reichstag in 1945 was one in English—"Bethlehem, PA, USA—Donbass, Ukraine, Aktyubinsk, Kazakhstan, Berlin, Germany May 1945—Nicholas." That was the heroic and patriotic American, Nicholas Burlak, who did not allow his separation from our country to prevent his allegiance to it.

With the sixty-fifth anniversary of the end of World War II, the Russian government awarded Mr. Burlak a medal. I believe it is appropriate for his fellow countrymen in the United States, now that he has returned to live among us as he always wanted to do, to join in commemorating the extraordinary dedication of this brave young man who has become a very valued member of our country today.

Madam Speaker, Nicholas Burlak's commitment to his fellow and sister citizens did not end with his joining in the war against the Nazis. In 2007, for example, he received the Eloise K. Houghton Award in recognition of community spirit and outstanding volunteer service from the Newton Community Development Foundation, a very important organization in my hometown, which provides help to others.

Madam Speaker, Nicholas Burlak understood how important his story was and how many people could learn from and be inspired by it, so he wrote a book—under the pseudonym of the time of M.J. Nicholas, entitled "Love and War: An American Volunteer in the Soviet Red Army." It is not just an inspiring book, but a gripping one, and I welcome the chance, Madam Speaker, to mention it here, as part of the tribute that our country should be paying to Mr. Burlak. It is a tribute to him and to his neighbors that they are so inspired by his story that they took the initiative in writing to me and calling this to my attention, and I am very pleased to have the chance to express my admiration of Mr. Burlak and my appreciation to his neighbors for giving me the chance to do this.

COMMEMORATING THE FOUNDING OF TURKEY'S FIRST JAZZ DE-PARTMENT

HON. DONNA F. EDWARDS

OF MARYLAND

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, May 3, 2010

Ms. EDWARDS of Maryland. Madam Speaker, I rise today to commemorate the establishment of Turkey's first Jazz Department within Hacettepe University's prestigious Ankara State Conservatory. In the words of H. Res. 57 introduced by the Hon. JOHN CONYERS of Michigan during the 100th Congress, Jazz is "a unifying force, bridging cultural, religious, ethnic and age differences in our diverse society." This introduction of jazz education in Turkey further demonstrates the sweeping influence of this national treasure and its power to build bridges extending beyond our shores.

I am honored to have been in attendance, along with my colleagues the Hon. ED WHITFIELD of Kentucky and the Hon. JAMES P. MORAN of Virginia, at a gala reception on April 2, 2010 celebrating this department's inception. There could not have been a more fitting time to recognize the launch of the Ankara State Conservatory's Jazz Department than at the beginning of Jazz Appreciation Month. Without the insight and collaborative efforts of Hacettepe University's American Studies Department, the U.S. Embassy in Ankara, and the Turkish Coalition of America this momentous occasion would not have become a reality.

As a member of the Congressional Black Caucus, I am proud to have had the opportunity to witness first-hand another culture's deep appreciation for this over a century old African-American tradition. With its origins in the American south, Jazz is a musical genre that marks a confluence of African and European music traditions. Its melodic union of styles, sounds, and improvisation has inspired musicians around the world. At the gala reception held in Ankara on April 2, my colleagues Mr. WHITFIELD, Mr. MORAN, and I were treated to a musical set by the Melis Sökmén Quartet. In addition to being a renowned Turkish jazz singer, Ms. Sökmén is the personification of her country's famed bridging of cultures. Born to a Guinean mother and Turkish father, Ms. Sökmén's pride in her roots beamed in particular during her jazz rendition of traditional West African lullaby "Malaika."

One cannot mention jazz without referring to the invaluable contributions of Atlantic Records founder Ahmet Ertegun. The son of a Turkish Ambassador father and a mother who filled their house with music, Ahmet and his brother Nesruhi became fans of blues and jazz at an early age while residing in Washington DC. The first ever integrated concert in Washington DC featuring jazz greats Duke Ellington and Lena Horne came about due to the efforts of the Ertegun brothers. Atlantic Records was established in 1947 and over the next several decades produced albums by jazz legends including John Coltrane, Charles Mingus, Dizzy Gillespie, and Wilbur de Paris. The Turkish fascination with jazz is attributable not only to the genius of the music itself but Ahmet Ertegun's success in helping it evolve into an internationally renowned art form.

Madam Speaker and colleagues, please join me in congratulating all parties involved in the development of the inaugural Jazz Department at Hacettepe University. Hacettepe University and the U.S. Embassy's Public Affairs section have commenced a faculty exchange program in which jazz specialists from both countries will work and learn from one another. The joint effort of American and Turkish individuals and organizations in its establishment is a testament to over sixty years of enduring friendship between the United States and Turkey. Through shared appreciation of the arts these two great nations have formed yet another vital and resilient bond.

IMPLEMENTING MANAGEMENT FOR PERFORMANCE AND RE-LATED REFORMS TO OBTAIN
VALUE IN EVERY ACQUISITION
ACT OF 2010

SPEECH OF

HON. MICHAEL R. TURNER

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, April 28, 2010

The House in Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union had under consideration the bill (H.R. 5013) to amend title 10, United States Code, to provide for performance management of the defense acquisition system, and for other purposes:

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Chair, I want to thank the members of the House Armed Services Committee as well as Chairman SKELTON and Ranking Member McKEON for their support in bringing this bill to the floor today. I also appreciate their leadership in incorporating language from the Turner Amendment into the en bloc amendment in Committee, which was approved when the bill was reported out last week.

Our effectiveness on the battlefields of tomorrow relies in part on our ability to foster the innovation and technology that have made American armed forces the strongest in the world. As is the case with so many military issues, as we consider this bill we must ensure we consider our most important and precious resource: The service members who serve our country in the military. My amendment seeks to assist service members in their training and education.

The Turner Amendment also seeks to ensure that DoD leverages the acquisition educational centers of excellence already in place. These organizations of excellence—such as those at Defense Acquisition University and the Air Force Institute of Technology, known as “AFIT,” located at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base—do an excellent job of educating acquisition professionals.

By enhancing and improving the programs at these existing institutions, my amendment will validate appropriate and effective acquisition curricula, and leverage institutional knowledge, educational professionals, and best practices. Finally, the amendment directs organizations to identify sufficient funding amounts required for training and education.

Training requirements for personnel are important, and we must ensure that our educational institutions provide the updated and improved curricula to meet these requirements. We must also ensure the Department of Defense is planning ahead and providing the necessary resources to train the next generation of acquisition professionals.

I thank my colleagues for their unanimous bipartisan support for the Turner Amendment language incorporated in this reform legislation.
